Anniston Chemical Activity

The Alabama Chemical Demilitarization Citizens' Advisory Commission

The Army is committed to the safe disposal of the chemical weapons stored at Anniston Army Depot, as well as providing meaningful opportunities for the public to be involved in the project at the Anniston Chemical Agent Disposal Facility. The Army recognizes that public participation in this program is critical to its success.

To that end, the Army has worked with the state of Alabama to establish the Alabama Chemical Demilitarization Citizens' Advisory Commission (CAC). This group provides a vital link between the Anniston community, the state and the Army by providing a forum for exchanging information about chemical weapons disposal.

The Alabama commission meets with representatives of the Army at public meetings to discuss the chemical demilitarization project and its impact on Alabama, the Anniston community and the interests of the public.

The CAC consists of six members; five are members of the community at large while one is a state official. Members are appointed by and serve at the discretion of the Alabama governor. Although the Alabama CAC receives limited federal funding, it operates independently of the influence of the Army.

For more information, citizens are invited to either contact a commission member listed below or a staff member at the Anniston Chemical Demilitarization Community Outreach Office at (256) 238-0120.
