Exercises prepare Anniston Chemical Activity*

Steel containers, more than seven feet long, were used during a mock disaster drill on Anniston Army Depot earlier this month. Several scripted exercises involving chemical munitions are conducted each year to evaluate Depot, Emergency Management Agency, and other community responders. Forty years of exercises will likely end March 2 with what should be the last annual Chemical Stockpile Emergency Preparedness Program (CSEPP) disaster drill. Federal representatives and local and State responders train as a team to protect the entire community. (Whitman)
